Subject: PALM Announcement - June 2002

Palm Inc. has completed another step toward full separation into two independent companies. All central marketing functions have been integrated into the two business units beginning with the new fiscal year. This planned transition, consistent with our No. 1 objective for 2002, will result in a new role for Satjiv S. Chahil, Chief Marketing Officer.

Satjiv has served in the CMO role since the inception of Palm as a public company and is well regarded as a spokesman for Palm and the industry. In that spirit, I'm delighted to report that Satjiv will remain an active leader of the Palm Economy but in a new, multifaceted role. This role will be outside of Palm proper but still within the Palm sphere and, indeed, I've asked him to continue to speak publicly about Palm and the Palm Economy. His role will include three main elements:

* Satjiv has been appointed to serve on the newly created board of PalmSource as an external director. (The full PalmSource board will be announced June 24th)

* Satjiv is actively involved in the creation of a Palm-centered, independent media company, with the help of several third-party investors. This company will accelerate the creation and distribution of compelling content for the Palm Economy; and

* Satjiv will lead two focused projects for Palm: the first one is the creation of an external advisory board, composed of leading influencers and visionaries, who will provide a broader base of input to our future strategy, and in many cases, serve as Palm ambassadors. The second project will focus on propagating the usage of Palm in developing countries, working with the United Nations, international NGO's and venture philanthropic organizations.

In all three activities, Satjiv will report to me in my Palm chairman capacity. I would like to express my gratitude to Satjiv for being one of the key contributors to the rise of the Palm brand around the world, for building close relationships with strategic partners, industry influencers and key media, and for continuing to remain loyal and committed to the Palm cause.
